Lt. Clinton Resigns From Army To Direct Citizen Food Conservation

Famed Golden Rule Restaurateur To Try Program on National Scale

Fifty million pounds of food salvaged from the garbage cans of American homes is the ultimate aim of Lt. Clifford E. Clinton, assistant mess officer at Fort Benning, whose resignation from the U. S. Army is effective this week when he leaves the fort to direct the "Citizen's Food Conservation Program," under the direction of Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, Washington, D. C.

Having set in operation the food savings plan at the Fort where the number of pounds of food saved per day has proven its worth, Lt. Clinton will set in motion this same program on a nation-wide scale for civilians. Beginning the saving last fall in making meatloaf, apple butter toast and week-end rolls and even bread "breads" by dextro-rolling, this program has grown until at present each mess segregates, weighs and records waste from trays by having the soldier scrape all left-overs on his tray into receptacles especially marked for segregation as "meat," "vegetables," "tomatoes," "desert," and "bread." This segregation serves a two-fold purpose. It causes the man to think and realize that the army is determined to prevent waste, and it allows the mess personnel to adopt more corrective procedures. Messes that have adopted this procedure have saved an average of 50 per cent in the first six days.

Believing that food has been proved the critical weapon in war and peace, not excepting ammunition, Lt. Clinton has a plan to make every citizen in the United States food conscious. The essential elements of the plan would be to make every person in the United States conscious of his ability to assist in the food shortage crisis by saving at least one-half pound of food per day per person, thus instituting in every household a conscientious food-saving plan within its own four walls making it a definite component of the "Win the War" campaign.

An important part of this program will be greater saving in purchasing, storing and preparing food as well as the use of all edible parts of vegetables eliminating the over-all wastage. The same waste segregation plan used in the army mess hall would be instituted in individual homes making members of the family waste conscious. Already there are six average homes using this plan as a test for other homes, whose findings will be announced.

Contests will be conducted and United States War Bonds will be awarded as prizes for the best suggestions, slogans and posters to be used in the nation-wide food conservation program. Business houses, newspapers, and the radio will be used to nationally educate people in its possibilities, its scope and its tremendous food saving potentialities.

WORLD WAR VET
A veteran of World War I, Lt. Clinton saw action with a tank company in France during the war. Although he wanted to join the armored forces for World War

II, his age kept him from joining this branch of the Infantry. However, he was accepted by the coast artillery and sent to Camp Wallace, Texas, for training. The deeds of yesterday often catch up with the man of today, and so it was with Lt. Clinton, then Pvt. Clinton. Reporters discovered that Pvt. Clinton, famous for his Golden Rule Restaurants in Los Angeles, Calif., and with this discovery came the death of his dreams for active duty. He was placed in charge of the Bakers and Cooks school at Camp Wallace, until he was sent to Carlisle, Pa., to Medical Administration school where he received his gold bars. Director of dietetics for a large mess at Fort Benning in August, 1942, was his first assignment as a lieutenant. This mess hall was to undergo many strange changes from a regulation G. I. mess hall to one with painted walls, canaries, gold fish, a piano and juke box for music with meals.

CAFETERIA STYLE
Here in this mess was instituted for the first time the serve-yourself-cafeteria-style of service for mess halls. Using double lines of trays the service was so speeded up that 600 men could be served in approximately eight minutes. This mess was the first to allow G. I.'s the privilege of smoking with their meals, and hand painted ash trays—made from empty tomato cans painted in gay colors with flowers—were placed on each table. Thus mess hall was looked forward to with pleasure instead of dread as it had been "done and going through."

Applying the Golden Rule to his army activities, Lt. Clinton had the mess hall decorated with pictures and flowers; more care was taken in the preparation and serving of the food—for the idea was instilled in the minds of the cooks to prepare the food as they would like to have it prepared for themselves; and jams, drinks, and other extras were provided at a buffet table for their service.

Soon after the first of the year, plans were completed for the opening of the Army Exchange Cafeteria on the main post. Lt. Clinton was assigned to visit several large camps in various parts of the country to get first hand knowledge of the latest in equipment, management, and food preparation in these large camps, to couple with his personal knowledge of cafeterias for civilians gained from operating the Brookdale and the Pacific Seas in Los Angeles for several years before enlisting in the army.

THOUSANDS FED
Thousands of soldiers with a sprinkling of civilians are fed daily at this cafeteria. Soft lights; soothing music; flowers, palms and hanging baskets; pictures; and neat courteous attractive girls coupled with good food, attractively served make it the favorite eating place on the post.

The WAC detachment mess is indebted to Lt. Clinton for his help in planning, decorating and serving their mess. This mess is painted white, with attractive curtains, flowers, and large plaques of Pallas Athena, their emblem used in cutouts on their walls and ash trays. The color scheme of green and gold is carried out in the decorations here.

So, leaving Fort Benning and his mess behind him, Lt. Clinton takes to his new assignment personal knowledge of a perfect mess.

It's High Time The Army Clean Up The Restaurants

An Editorial

Little doubt remains but that the Army generally has been responsible for removing, in most areas adjacent to camps, sources of venereal disease. Evil conditions such as red light districts, long tolerated by civilian governments, were cleaned out when the Army said that the health of soldiers would not be jeopardized. Much has been published in The Bayonet and the local press on the progress made in this area with the problem of venereal disease and prostitution.

In Columbus and Phenix City, however, there remains one dirty problem which we think it is within the province of Army authorities to attack, and that is the filthy, unsanitary condition prevailing in some of the local eating places.

We know of at least one place where no facilities exist for employees to wash their hands in the one toilet which must serve all customers and employees, male and female alike. In another place a feeble sign states that all employees must wash their hands after using the dirty toilet facilities provided. The wash-bowl available, by its own filth, would bring shudders to those not at all squeamish normally.

Bones and entrails of animals litter the courtyard of still another place at which one must pass through the kitchen and courtyard to find a latrine. Garbage thrown in such confusion about the place certainly must provide a feasting place for hundreds of rats. In fact we have seen rats in one place eat with such impunity that it is obvious they are tolerated and treated as friends. Before the war, it is recalled, the United States Department of Health regarded rats as a major menace to the nation's health. Presumably rats have not changed their status as potential carriers of germs which could spread a deadly epidemic.

At the soda fountain-lunch counter of another establishment frequented by Benning soldiers and their families the sour stench of decaying food is so strong that only one with a cast-iron stomach or suffering with chronic catarrh can possibly endure the nauseous odor.

Now all of the instances which we have cited above might possibly be labelled superficial. Yet if such conditions can be seen at a casual glance or a sniff, we shudder to think what a careful inspection would reveal.

The remedy is simple. If the Lonesome Pine Tavern can be placed off-limits as a measure of safety for the health of troops, so can any restaurant which flaunts all the common-sense rules of sanitation. We suggest that the medical inspector's office work out an inspection program in cooperation with local civic health authorities. That such a program can produce results is amply proved by what was accomplished with the filthy haunts of prostitutes.

Violations of decent standards may not be found in a majority of places, but where the managements of eateries refuse to follow some sort of standard it is not asking too much that Army authorities protect the men and women of this command.

FDR Has Post-War Plans For Servicemen

Service men and women may look to their readjustment in the post-war period with a feeling of security, according to a report on demobilization made by a conference established by President Roosevelt following his radio speech to the nation one week ago.

Among other social security benefits for service men and women in the demobilization and readjustment period following the war, the report called for a three-month furlough for every man and woman to be given at base pay, but not to exceed $100 per month, plus family allowances.

The need for rapid conversion of industry now geared to a wartime economy back to a peacetime basis was emphasized by the report which recognized that the bulk of employment should be supplied by private enterprise.

SIX-POINT PROGRAM
A six-point program was mapped by the committee. It follows:

1. Three months furlough at regular base pay not to exceed $100 a month, plus family allowances.

2. Beyond that time, if necessary, unemployment insurance for 26 weeks for those who register with the United States employment service.

3. Special aid and counsel regarding readjustment and rehabilitation.

4. Special provision, including tuition and allowances, for those who wish to pick up the threads of their education or follow some special course of training.

5. Veterans' credit for old age and survivors insurance on the basis of service in the armed forces.

6. Opportunities for agricultural, business and settlement to be provided for a limited number of qualified servicemen. But in general, agriculture should not be looked upon as a dumping ground for the industrial unemployed, since the problem is broader than that of agriculture.

2230 ROTC CADETS EXPECTED NEXT WEEK

College Men To Be Assigned To ASTP Fifth Regiment

The recently activated 5th Training Regiment of the ASTP is making plans to receive a group of 2230 ROTC cadets this coming week. The ROTC men will come here from schools and colleges throughout the country and will receive the usual basic training before going through the rigorous officer candidate work.

During recent weeks the officers and men of the 5th Regiment have been training every effort to prepare the area and training program so that every detail from the feeding of the men to the intricacies of training will click with the precision of a veteran organization.

Col. Kenneth S. Whittemore, commanding officer of the 5th Regiment, and his officers have a wide variety of background and experience that should make a well-balanced outfit. Col. Whittemore has 26 years experience as an officer in the regular army. Many of the others are veterans of the first world war, and the school, while others have been practical experience with basic training work at Camp Wheeler. Theoretically, the school will make their officer candidate work easier and more profitable.

The 4th Regiment will give this group of ROTC men the practical background of being enlisted men which should supplement their theoretical knowledge and make their officer candidate work easier and more profitable.

War Bond Rally At Patio Grill Nets $12,267
A total of $12,267.25 in war bonds and stamps were sold Monday night by a bevy of Fort Benning girls headed by Film Actress Jane Russell at a bond rally held at the Patio Grill. Major George Fink, post war bond officer, announced Wednesday after a final check-up. The sales were made within a period of three hours.

Miss Russell was assisted by Lorraine Pointer, Mary Childress, Elizabeth Morgan, Mary Coan, Katherine Flynn, Doris Brown, Estelle Burns, and Marguerita Brescia, all employed in the civilian branch at Benning. Jack Gibeau, WRLB announcer, also gave his assistance. Miss Russell appeared at the rally through the courtesy of WRLB, by whom she is employed as a bond saleswoman at the Victory Tank downtown.

Major Fink declared that he was pleased with the results of the Patio Grill rally and said that Benning girls forward to participation in the seventeen billion dollar war loan drive slated to get underway September 5.

Gators Spend 24 Millions On Insurance
Climaxing an insurance drive in the 124th Infantry of The Infantry School Troops, Lt. Guy W. Mack recently announced the Gators have invested $24,633,000. This figure represents 89.3 per cent of the Regiment with an average policy of $7,750 per man.

Company I boasts a 100 per cent, with each man holding an average $8,400 policy. Company G holds the greatest amount of insurance, having purchased $1,625,000 in government insurance.

His playmates include Bill and Pearl Wilson, magicians, whose tricks are as engaging as the sergeant's quizzers, and the lovely Adrian Sisters, a melodious trio who have appeared at leading supper clubs in the country. The regiment is represented by Pearl Robins, a "tap on toe" specialist.

Emcee Ferguson insists Pearl says she has to keep away from the heels. Additional attractions are a couple of table tennis champions, Lou Schiff, a national champ, and Cal Skinner, 1942 top man in the east.

Music is by Lee Barrett and her boys. The luscious and talented Miss Barrett has been in the limelight since she was ten when she first made her debut as piano player. Apart from music she conceals a talent for magic.

Future Wars Vet Co-Founder Goes To War
One of the veterans of Future Wars, the organization of American undergraduates whose satirical demand for preparation of a 1936 bonus achieved headline notoriety seven years ago, has "gone to war." It was disclosed here recently.

He is Robert G. Barnes of the Eighth Company, 3rd Student Training Regiment, The Infantry School, whose home is in New Haven, Conn. He was one of the 12 undergraduates who founded the organization at Princeton University in the spring of 1936 and guided the story career in the nation's press is now an officer candidate here.

WINNER OF A "War versus Romance" contest conducted by the Nassau Daily Review-Star, her home town newspaper in Rockville Centre, N. Y., Mrs. Gordon Ellison arrived at Fort Benning as the guest of that newspaper for a visit with her husband, Officer Candidate Ellison of the 12th Company, Second Student Training Regiment, The Infantry School. She is pictured in the mess hall of the 12th company enjoying chow between the morning and afternoon classes of her husband. (U. S. Army Signal Corps photo.)

Post WAC's Now In Army
General Fulton Swears In Hq. Detachment
Members of the WAC Detachment, station complement, Fort Benning, "are in the Army of the United States" as of 7 p. m. Wednesday.

They were sworn in by Brig. Gen. Walter S. Fulton, post commander, and after the ceremony no longer known as "auxiliary So and So" but as "private, corporal, sergeant," since they assume the grades as well as the privileges of enlisted men in the Army. The latter include free mailing rights, government insurance, dependency allotments, and all other benefits given enlisted men.

In swearing in the WAC's, Gen. Fulton praised their loyalty and ability to do their job and expressed appreciation for the effective manner in which they have assumed positions at post headquarters, relieving many enlisted men for active duty.

Authority for enlisting members of the WAC into the WAC complements, AUS Army, United States, was received at Fort Benning late Tuesday by Lieut. Gail Gaines, commanding officer of the WAC Detachment, station complement, from War Department. Machinery was immediately placed in motion to enlist as many women as have passed the rigid

Medical Department Anniversary Observed

The past week brought to the Medical Department became a series of July celebrations by the Medical Detachment, Station Hospital, Major John B. Joyner, commanding, commemorating the 168th anniversary of the Medical Department of the United States Army.

The celebrations were under the direction of 2nd Lieutenant D. J. Dionisio, M. A. C., Special Service officer of the Detachment. Dances for the different units were the feature events, and the Unit Number One dance highlighted the activities of the month.

Music for the festival gatherings was furnished by the Detachment's own band, which is billed on local public appearances as "The Biggest Little Band in Fort Benning."

The Main Detachment Dance, attended by enlisted men and their dates, was held on July 28 at the Polo Hunt club. A bevy of attractive student nurses from the Columbus City hospital were special guests.

The club, situated in a nook of the Benning woods, was an ideal setting for the dance. Refreshments were served, and the large crowd enjoyed itself to the utmost as the strains of popular music brought merriment and good cheer to the nocturnal scene.

The anniversary dance for Unit No. 2 was held at Harmony Church.

BOE-DOWN
The colored detachment of Unit No. 1 made merry at Service Club Number 4 with an old-fashioned boe-down.

The colored personnel of Unit Number 2 had a two-fold cause for celebration since their recreation hall was completed during the month. They made the most of it with a shindig in which the dusky Joes and their girl friends cut fancy tervishorean capers on the polished floor until long after "Taps" had sounded.

Speaking on the occasion of the anniversary, Major Joyner, veteran of World War I, said:

"Over a century and a half ago

the Medical Department became a part of the United States Army. It began as a small staff attached to a few scattered armed units of that day. Since that time it has grown into a close-knit organization of mercy, serving millions of fighting men. For 168 years it has gone into the smoke and mud and blood of battle-scarred areas, and today it is serving on the rapid-fire battle fronts of the world.

"Through all these years the Medicos have kept the men in uniform ever 'Fit for Fighting.' They have worked while others slept, performing their manifold duties to stricken fighters, and have been an integral part of the wars of yester-year, uncompensated, and with quiet efficiency, caring for those who could not care for themselves, twenty-four hours a day, 365 days out of each year, men of the Medical staff have been on the job. It is, therefore, an honor for men of this Detachment to be carrying on the noble work which a small body of patient, sympathetic men began 168 years ago this month."

Jump Recordings To Keep Individual Chutists In Shape

Hospitalized paratroopers at Fort Benning, who have been injured during training, no longer are out of the swing of things.

The Parachute School here, which trains army paratroopers for the Airborne Command, has provided several recordings of actual jump instructions inside planes over Benning, among other sound effects. These records have been turned over to the Station Hospital where the invalid paratroopers may listen to recording on days when they want to hear the drone of a C-47 the instructions of a jumpmaster, or the audible reactions of "chutists" as they are about to bail out.

ARCHERY RANGE

An archery range is a new addition to the recreation facilities of the Medical Detachment, Station Hospital.

Archery shooting is a sport which trains the eye and steadies the nerve," said 2nd Lt. Dionisio, Special Service officer of the Detachment. "It furthers the training of the Medical soldier in that it utilizes some of his off-duty time in practice which stands him in good stead in the strenuous hours of hospital duty."

Army Engineer Corps Personnel Needs Increase

With the development of the Allied campaign in Sicily and the necessity of developing bases in conquered territory, the need for men in the Corps of Engineers in the army is greatly increased, Captain James A. Baird, area engineer at Fort Benning, says.

Civilians reasonably proficient in any of the trades or construction industry may be voluntarily inducted, and enlisted men in the army who are specialists in these lines in civilian life may be transferred to the Corps of Engineers with definite assurance of getting the right job, Captain Baird said.

Classifications range from that of camoufleur to tractor driver. The Corps of Engineers gives men who volunteer for this work a chance to fit in the army in places for which they are best fitted and the variety of assignments is probably greater than any other branch of the service can offer, Captain Baird stated.

Assignments are available in the army air forces, the army service force or the army ground force, as the engineers operate in all branches.

In stressing the wide variety of jobs available for trained men, Captain Baird pointed out that the Amphibious Engineers actually landed American troops in Sicily. One of the ways in which they confronted the numerous problems was to throw chicken wire over barbed wire entanglement and crossed right over the wire without having to cut it piece by piece.

Many ratings are available for men coming into the engineers, Captain Baird said, and up to and include master sergeant ratings. In emphasizing the tremendous need for men with construction experience, Captain Baird pointed out that bridges, ports, airfields, and roads, to mention only a few, must be built in captured territory for use of combat soldiers and the transport of supplies.

Much miniature equipment, including scrapers and other excavating equipment, has been developed to be carried on airplanes to extremely distant battlefronts. Men in the Corps of Engineers will go right along with the equipment, Captain Baird said.

Civilians who have experience in these lines are divided into two brackets for joining the corps. Those from 18 to 37 years of age are eligible for voluntary induction, while those from 38 to 56 will come in strictly as volunteers under the present setup.

Interviews with Captain Baird in the office of the area engineer at Fort Benning will be granted to anyone interested, and the interview will impose no obligation upon the person involved, the captain stated.

CAN TRANSFER
Qualified enlisted man already in the army also can be transferred to the engineers from other units, if their commanding officer gives them permission. However, such men seeking transfers must have their commanding officer's approval before obtaining an interview.

Among the wide fields in which men are needed are mechanics, carpenters, draftsmen, machinists, surveyors, radio operators, firemen, welders, well diggers, blacksmiths, telephone linemen, motorboat operators, bricklayers, plumbers and cabinet makers.

Men coming into the Corps of Engineers also are eligible for offer candidate school after they have completed their preliminary training. In some cases, qualified men may be recommended directly to officer candidate school without the completion of the 13 weeks' training, Captain Baird said.

Material things must be the servant of man's growth and not the master of his decay.

We all know what we expect of the army. Let's begin to see what the Army expects of us.

Soldier Killed By Falling Pole

Fatally injured when a large pole being set up for observation purposes toppled over on him, Pvt. George W. Mallory Jr., 19 years old, member of the motor pool section of the First Parachute Training Regiment, was killed at noon Friday.

Pvt. Mallory was the son of George W. Mallory Sr., R. F. D. 1, Olean, N. Y., and Mrs. Ada Mallory, 370 W. Ferry St., Buffalo, N. Y. He was inducted on Feb. 12, 1943, at Fort Niagara, N. Y., and was sent to the Field Artillery Replacement Training Center at Fort Bragg, N. C., where he served until he came to the Parachute School on May 26.

BAND CONCERT

Patients in the Neuropsychiatric section at Station Hospital heard the Medical Detachment band and Corp. Jennie Gramis of the WAAC Headquarters Detachment at their regular weekly concert. The band played "On the Alamo," "You'll Never Know," "Embraceable You," and "My Gal Sal." Corp. Gramis sang "Let's Get Lost" and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes." Cold punch was served.

Third Regiment Dedicates New Amphitheater

Arena Conceived And Built In 10 Days By Soldiers

It took only ten days for the Third Student Training Regiment's new amphitheater, dedicated last week, to move through the evolution from idea to reality. The amphitheater which is ideally located in a ravine that was a "natural" for just such a project was premised by a presentation of USO Camp Shows, "Happy Landings," musical revue featuring Roy Caylor's All-Girl Band.

The amphitheater can seat close to 4000 and plans are now being made whereby boxing bouts and other sporting events may be held on the stage which measures 42 feet in length and has a depth of 32 feet.

The idea was hatched simultaneously in the minds of Major Everett Posey and Lt. Henry Blake of the regimental supply office who after conferring with Lt. Milton Bach, the 3rd Student Training Regiment's special service officer, made immediate plans to clear the ground and set up a stage.

Full credit for the construction of the amphitheater goes to Cpl. Nicholas Rosack, who having learned of the contemplated project volunteered his services. From then on things began to take form. Cpl. Rosack and a handful of men detailed from the Service Battalion worked from the crack of dawn till sundown, their ardor

Have a "Coke" = Come, be blessed and be happy

...or how to break the ice in Iceland

"Come, be blessed and be happy", says the hospitable Iclander when he meets a stranger. That's a warm way of putting it, but no more friendly than the way American soldiers say it. Have a "Coke", says the Doughboy and it works in Reykjavic as it does in Rochester. The pause that refreshes is the friendly way to say "Hi, pal" in any language. All over the globe Coca-Cola has become the gracious ice-breaker between kindly-minded strangers.

Benning Press Association Announces Organization

A Fort Benning newspaper association was formed Saturday by representatives of six camp newspapers meeting in ASTP headquarters in the Harmony Church area. The organization, to be known as the Fort Benning Press Association, named Sergeant John M. Naylor, editor of the ASTP Pinebur, chairman pro tem.

Next meeting of the press association will be held Saturday at 10:15 a. m. in the Special Service office of the 176th Infantry Regiment to elect permanent officers. The organization will have as its primary aim a program to establish cooperation between the 10 odd post newspapers and will attempt to coordinate more closely their operations and activities. Chairman Naylor said.

Those attending the initial meeting were Chairman Naylor, Sergeant Milton Luban, editor of the Academic Mirror; Corporal Leo A. Breuer, sports editor and staff photographer of the Shave-it; Technician Fifth Grade John J. Fitzgibbon, editor of The Threethundredth; Pvt. A. Shapiro, associate editor of the Spirit of 176, and Pvt. Sheldon A. Keitel, member of the staff of the post public relations office and the Bayonet.

Every soldier newspaper published at Fort Benning is invited to join the press association.

MAJOR ORVILLE J. HALL, who leaves the Sixth Training Regiment where he was plans and training officer. Major Hall was a member of the Attack Committee of the Tactical Section, TIS for 13 months. United States In Need Of Definite Foreign Policy

It is probably no exaggeration to say that 98 out of 100 American men in the armed forces think that because they are willingly doing their best in whatever branch of the service they happen to be in they are performing all that their country should require.

An overwhelming number of Americans regard international politics and foreign affairs as a shady dishonest mess which they won't even try to understand. They prefer to leave these matters to professional diplomats whose business they consider it is.

What so many of us innocently fail to realize is that in our form of society and government the actions of the President, the diplomats and Congress is ultimately at the mercy of popular opinion and that means the opinion of you and me and every other G. I. It further means that if you and I or our parents had been more intelligently informed in these matters the present war would not be taking place and we would be pursuing normal happy lives.

If you ask the average soldier why we are at war he'll answer, "Because the Japanese stabbed us in the back at Pearl Harbor" or "Because Hitler and the Germans are trying to dominate the world." Unhappily the real reasons and issues are not as simple and clear cut as this. It is perfectly possible that if American popular opinion had made a concerted foreign policy Hitler would never have come to power and Japan would have never been able to attack us.

To make a perfectly concrete example of how public opinion can frustrate the best efforts of competent statesmen let us recall our very own opinions of five years ago or even less. Although the President, our Department of State and the war and navy department knew perfectly well that war was absolutely inevitable anyone who ventured a warning was called a war-monger. To give that aid to England which no sane person can dispute in the light of subsequent events has saved us from invasion and devastation at this moment. The President had to buck strong congressional and popular opposition. Many of the most intelligent people were deluded into supposing that we could avoid war by "minding our own business" and we missed committing the grossest error, folly and disgrace of our entire history by one congressional vote whereby the army was saved from disbandment in the face of the greatest impending crises in the history of the world.

It is never a pleasure to be reminded of our own wrongheadedness but there were no doubt thousands of soldiers who when the last named measure missed being passed by so precarious a margin felt angry and ill-used. If there is a right on what the possible consequences would have been. The United States has never once since her beginnings entered a war for which she was prepared and this has been inevitably due to the torpor of the people and their downright refusal to recognize a danger until it engulfs them. In answer to those who may point out that we never have lost a war it may be remarked that we have never formed a first class power without the aid of formidable allies.

Now the typical American response to having these facts noted is "Yes—admittedly we were mistaken but happily at whatever cost we've rectified our errors so let's get the war over with and get back to normal."

This attitude extended to its implications means in effect "Let us put down our enemies, make a just peace, and get back to a more prosperous version of our lives in 1937." It also means if American thought continues in its accustomed channels that we will take care of ourselves and once again keep our skirts clear of "foreign messes."

Now just let us consider one aspect of a future world in which the United Nations have emerged victorious over Japan and Germany and let that aspect be China: After centuries of political and economic stagnation wherein the nation to all practical purposes was in the same stage as the western world during the chaos of the middle ages, China within the past quarter century has shown evidence of a renaissance and disposition to take the place to which her area and population entitles her as a major industrial modern world power.

Leaders capable of bringing about China's rejuvenation have come to the fore and the process is inevitable. It is a question of under whose tutelage China's transformation is to take place and upon that tutelage and upon our attitude depends whether the formidable China of the not distant future is to be the friend or enemy of the United States.

Let anyone who thinks that such possibilities are of the remote future reflect on how short a time (less than half a century) Japan transformed herself from a primitive agricultural group of small islands into one of the greatest industrial and military empires of all time. China has the potentialities of far greater power than Japan possesses and while the realization of that power may be delayed nothing can prevent its ultimate fruition.

There are millions of people in China who don't care particularly who rules them, in fact many of them probably don't even know who the present leaders the Japanese could in a very short time reconcile a vast majority of people to their leadership through means of a puppet emperor or some such device. The Chinese, Heaven knows with some reason, have had no cause to love occidentals as such and are not so keen to the difference between Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans etc., as we are. In the course of a generation the Japanese, given a free hand, could force a combine with China which all the powers of the Western World might struggle against in vain.

In short China is destined to be in the van of future world power and it behooves us to have her our friend and not the instrument of our enemies.

However, it does not follow that merely because we aid China in defeating Japan that she will therefore automatically love us forevermore. We were the mentors of the Japanese, the English aided the Germans and the Italians in their struggles to become great nations, yet regard the present day lineup. Nations do not predicate their world policy on sentiment but rather what they conceive to be their national interests and the ethics which prevail in the intercourse between individuals do not obtain in international affairs.

In order to cope with these headaches and to minimize the possibilities of future wars the United States has got to have a carefully planned foreign policy and such a foreign policy once formulated must have consistency and continuity and not be subject to the whim of changing administrations and capricious public opinion which can jitter with every excursion of a sensational press. No man can make a worthwhile agreement or bargain with an individual who is emotionally unbalanced and changes his mind with every breeze. By the same token how can our Allies trust an agreement made with us when a subsequent political reversal in Washington can bring about a repudiation of the arrangement? It happened after the last war when an isolationist congress, reflecting the views of a similarly minded people, prevented our power being thrown into the balance of world affairs through the League of Nations, and nullified its worth.

Whatever faults one may have to find with the present administration any intelligent American must be profoundly grateful for the forcefulness and consistency of its foreign policy in our national interest in the face of stupendous difficulties and it is to be fervently hoped that some means of insuring its continuity without regard to changes of political party might be insured.

In our democracy, as it has been observed before, popular sentiment controls our dealings with the rest of the world. With the best will in the world even the most intelligent of us are influenced by newspaper, magazine and radio sources. In fact one of the curses of the present age is our acceptance of ready made opinions and willingness to let others do our thinking for us.

Surely in the present circumstances the Government has a priceless opportunity to drag popular opinion out of the torpor or aimlessness of which it has been guilty. Under army tutelage are the men who are to comprise public opinion in the immediate future. Surely the very act of inducting which takes us out of our particular little neck of the woods is one step towards giving us more broad and cosmopolitan conceptions of world affairs. A gesture toward indoctrination in foreign policy or world affairs is made in the sporadic lectures we receive on the origins of the present war and its progress.

These lectures however are apt to be given to large groups in a warm sleep producing auditorium and by means of an impersonal sound film. The result is that they are apt to interest only the men who are already pretty well conversant with such matters.

It would surely seem as though simplified discussions of American foreign policy and its direct bearing on the individual soldier by instructors who are really interested in their topic and are capable of imparting this interest to a small audience would pay valuable dividends in the immediate future.

E Pluribus Unum Indeed Our Motto

It is interesting to note that since Pearl Harbor one written and spoken word of American speech has almost vanished. Historians of the future no doubt will take cognizance of the fact that with America's entrance into the war the personal pronoun "I" became obsolete almost overnight, and in the place of the often obnoxious term, we began to hear the plural and more social "We."

No longer do we say, "I will do a thing. We say, instead, "We will do it." This is a subtle indication of the cooperative spirit which American people possess. It is indicative of the wholehearted, full-bodied support which we give to that which we believe to be right. Faced with a national problem, our individual and comparatively petty desires and ambitions vanish as each of us willingly becomes one unit of a mighty whole, bent on a single purpose. This purpose, in the present case, is to win a war.

This ability to work as one on the part of the American people, is, perhaps, one of the outstanding reasons why we have never lost a war. When the people of an entire nation can, for the nonce, strip themselves of their individual pleasures, comforts and desires to give their all to the cause of Democracy, the people of that nation are certain of success, complete and lasting.

People of foreign countries receiving American newspapers and short wave radio broadcasts must be impressed, consciously or subconsciously, with this absence of the "singular" in American thought. Since continual use of the plural indicates that every man, woman and youngster of a great nation are working as a whole toward a single purpose, it must have a heartening effect on the feelings of our Allies. For our enemies it must be, to say the least, disquieting.

GARDEN OF ROSES

There were roses in the garden when Johnny left,
To fight on the western sea,
And I cherished the rose that he placed in my hair,
When he kissed farewell to me.
Many months have passed, yet the rose is fresh
As the kiss I shall never forget—
And the winds of time may tarry long—
But we'll wait for Johnny yet.
When the garden of roses blooms again—
And man of his bondage is shorn,
My Johnny will pluck a rose for my hair—
As before on a distant morn.

THE FOUR COMRADES

There were four brave men on the battlefield,
Four comrades, tried and true—
Off in the face of death they'd laughed,
And many were the tales they knew.
The mark of youth shone in their eyes,
Though solemn and bold were they,
And versed in the ways of blood and war,
And the clarion call to fray.
Said one, a blue-eyed Irish lad,
"He was always by my side,
And smiled to heed my every whim,
Tho he oft himself denied.
And another, tall and lean and dark,
With a muffled voice, spoke he,
"His wife is my darling sister,
And she waits for him patiently."
A solemn voice joined the other two,
Tho harsh and rough, it yet did blend
To form an almost holy note,
As he said "He was my friend."
And, with one last look, they turned away,
With sorrowful steps they trod,
Leaving him to the graces of
His Father and his God.

USO Presents

A SERIES OF SPLASH PARTIES PICNICS, AND THE ATER DUTCH TREATS

BY PVT. SHELDON A. KEITEL

The summer home hospitality program of the Ninth street USO will roll on through the month of August with a series of splash parties, formal garden parties and regular old-fashioned picnics. A few of the highlight attractions arranged by the USO are a picnic at Weracoba Park in Columbus Friday, August 13; a picnic and swimming party on the following Sunday, August 15, at the farm of Abe Straus, and a terrace dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Simons in Columbus.

Invitations for the various affairs can be secured by soldiers if they will contact either of the directors, Mr. Edward Korn or Mr. Eugene Bergmann, at the Ninth street USO.

Although Miss Mel Tolbert, program director at the Co. of the future USO, was confined to her home last week with a sprained knee, she arranged a swimming party and picnic for tonight at the Abe Straus farm. Soldiers from Fort Benning's Parachute school have been invited. Mrs. Mary Johnson, assistant program director, had taken over for Miss Tolbert while she was away.

The Town Hall program Sunday at 3 p. m. (EWT) at the Ninth street USO will feature a discussion of war news and how it is handled from the fighting fronts and in the camp newspapers. The musical program that day at 4:30 p. m. (EWT) will feature all Tchaikowsky works.

A change in the schedule of the Sunday boat trips aboard the Falcon on the Chattahoochee river sponsored by the Ninth street USO is announced. The trips now begin at 2 p. m. and the price of the day's sport has been reduced to 75 cents.

Miss Naomi Gail, former recreational and welfare worker in Boston, Mass., has succeeded Miss Helen Wohlstetter as assistant director at the Ninth street USO. Miss Gail comes to Columbus into attractive dishes and served at the subsequent meals. At times, spoiled food is found in

Key Says

A PROFESSOR'S WIFE GETS GOOD TRAINING FOR LIFE IN ARMY

Many women, suddenly confronted with the uncertainties which are the lot of an army wife, are appalled at the prospect of sudden moves, sad farewells to friends, and the possibility of indefinite separation from their husbands. Not so those of us who have had the good fortune, or misfortune—depending on one's point of view—to have spent previous years in the role of the wife of a pedagogue.

The faculty wife's existence, unless a man in her life has finally settled down, is filled with many of the problems which confound an army wife. Far pastures, to many a teacher, have a habit of looking greener. His long-suffering wife knows what it is to pack the children, the dog, and various household possessions into an overburdened car for a cross-country trek.

She has acted as an advance force to find a suitable place to live. She has learned how to pack efficiently, and to be chary of hoarding possessions when freight charges come out of the family pocketbook. She has learned how to brighten up a furnished apartment with a few cherished knickknacks, and to be philosophical when prized articles are broken in shipment.

She has known what it is to be left to her own resources, when her husband is working for another degree at summer school, or is deep in the throes of research. Often she helps the family finances along, in such a case, by finding work she can do.

She has learned to separate the wheat from the chaff among the other wives of the faculty. She knows who has something to contribute to her faculty women's club and other worthwhile organizations, and who prefers to take in the entertainment and shirk on the work.

She has already learned how to go into a strange town and make friends, and she has learned not to grieve too much when friends leave. She has discovered that friends have a habit of popping up unexpectedly, perhaps after years of absence, and that one seldom loses complete track of persons of whom one is genuinely fond.

For her occasional party for army personnel is a welcome relief after more rigid faculty teas and receptions. She accords the wives of superior officers the same courtesy and respect she has been wont to tender the wives of college deans. The huddle of men at a mixed party, talking over interests closest to their hearts, is already an all too familiar sight. And having learned to differentiate between the lowly instructor, the professor, and the doctor, the title of Lieutenant, Major, or General comes more easily to her lips.

The ex-faculty wife has learned to combine the roles of maid, laundress, and yard man, when recalcitrant school boards or state legislatures decide to economize on teachers' salaries. And she has learned that the same school boards or state legislatures, in their temperamental moments, can make life fully as unpredictable as can the prospect of orders to an undesignated station.

In short, she's learned to take life as it comes, a valuable asset in these uncertain times.

Sucker Bait . . .

AND ANDY FELL FOR MUSIC EVERY TIME HE HEARD IT

BY CAPT. F. M. SCHILLING
1st STR.

Old P. T. Barnum sure hit the nail on the head when he said something about suckers being born one per minute. He had the straight dope, all right. Most of us go for the hook if the bait's our brand. Of course, there's a million kinds of bait, too. My name's Andy Barnett (P.F.C.) and I'm a sucker for music. Take Mike Johnson and me, we both like music; it's a booby trap that gets us every time. With others it may be women, or money, or power, but Mike and I'll stick to music, thank you.

Music has lead us into lots of trouble at times. Like the time we got caught trying to crash into the "Grove" the night Bunny Berigan hung clarinet notes in the lighs over the third balcony. Man, those notes were high. They'd slide up from a mellow start, too. They'd start so low you could almost touch them, but before you could take a breath they'd be hitting the ceiling. The music wasn't loud, but it carried. We could still hear it from the outside even after we got bounced out. As I was saying, Mike and I were suckers for music. Any kind of music.

Mikes wasn't with me the day the bug bit me near the corner of 6th and 49th. I was alone. But the music was there. Music that had layer after layer of harmony and melody. None of this "jump-up-and-down" like you-got-a-ants' stuff, but real honest-to-heaven harmony and melody. So I followed, like a young kid following the smell of freshly made apple pie. I was hungry for music.

It was coming from the inside of a church I'd walked by a million times but never really noticed. A small, homey little church, with the plainest front you ever saw. Inside it was cozy and clean. You could smell the clean smell of the pine rafters and the cedar panels. The flowers up front sort of blended in and had you wondering if this wasn't about the closest you'd ever come to nature and goodness. It sort of carried you to a mountain top where you could see billowy white clouds floating in pale blue, and could feel a cool, refreshing breeze while scanning over lofty virgin timber and watching a small sailboat breaking the mirror of a blue-green lake with white jagged edges.

The music was beautiful, too. The organist was rehearsing the usual wedding selections. Every now and then I could pick one out and remember it as being played the time Em and I teamed up for good. It was sure swell music. I never felt so relaxed and happy before. As I already said, I'm a sucker for music. Maybe I forgot to say that I go for quiet, peaceful stuff like this, too.

Then I heard and saw the two of them. They weren't young. They must have been in the forties. He looked a bit time-worn as well. Together they fitted into my picture of happiness. Even the ragged wedding dress and the

A fighter in Guadalcanal got a letter full of grievances from home. "Dear Nellie," he replied, "Don't write me any more letters like that. Tear them up before you send them or keep them to yourself, and let me fight this war in peace."

Red Cross Field Director Joins Hospital Unit

Staff of Four Workers To Aid Mrs. Hordeman In Handling Work

Prepared to go into any climate and to share any hazards or emergencies, the organization to which they are now attached may eventually be called on to meet an assistant field director of the American Red Cross, with a staff of four workers, have been assigned to a Fort Benning hospital unit.

The assistant field director, Mrs. Theresa R. Hordeman of Casper, Wyoming, heads the Red Cross unit, which in addition to the assistant field director, is also a social worker, includes a staff social worker, two recreational workers and a secretary.

Miss Eileen Jennings of Missoula, Mont., is the staff social worker, while Miss Dorothy Downs of Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and Miss Nancy Rex Coman of Wakefield, R. I., are the recreational workers. The secretary is Miss Mary Jane Young of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The unit, which was recently formed at Red Cross National Headquarters in Washington, D. C., was assigned to the unit July 19, and will go wherever it may be assigned, Mrs. Hordeman declared.

As an assistant field director, Mrs. Hordeman is a member of the military and naval welfare service of the American Red Cross on duty with the armed services. Her duties include the administrative and organizational functions of setting up the unit, and supervision of both the social service and recreational phases.

PERSONAL NEEDS

The social service work, which will be performed by Mrs. Hordeman and Miss Jennings, includes taking care of the personal needs of patients in the hospital and soldiers attached to the medical department, ward visiting, letter writing, and the other functions of the social workers both in this country and abroad.

The recreational workers will be responsible for the organization and conduct of games, handicraft shops, movies and other types of entertainment. Wherever practical, outstanding talent will be brought in, and parties and entertainments will be sponsored. Miss Young, as secretary, handles the clerical work, including the setting up of files on all cases.

and takes care of all Red Cross equipment.

In the event of overseas service the function of the Red Cross unit would be to provide a well-rounded program of recreational and social services for patients and detachment members. Although under the treaty of Geneva an assistant field director is considered a non-combatant, she would be subject to every hazard of war and subject to capture. In case of capture, the assistant field director would be assimilated into the Army with the rank of captain for pay purposes, although a commission would not be held. In the event of war, they are subject to articles of war just as soldiers are, and to the order of the military commander under whom they serve.

ACT AS LIAISON

Overseas, as in the United States, these Red Cross units handle communications with families of soldiers, and act as a liaison between the civilians of the United States and members of the army. For the benefit of the hospital patients and the medical detachments, they will plan and organize a recreational program which would set up handicraft shops and workshops, improvise a recreation room for games, and also try to have a reading room wherever practical. Regular movies will be provided, and the Red Cross unit will be put on a regular movie circuit.

Tournaments, community sings, and games of all kinds will be sponsored.

From leaving this country, such a unit would see that three kits are safely stowed away on board their ship to accompany them to their destination. Kit "A" is composed of comfort articles such as soap, pencils, tobacco, pipes, book matches, combs, chewing gum and other such things to be distributed to the patients. Kit "B" is composed of recreation supplies and includes games, such as checkers, chess, dominoes, bingo, table tennis, and a football. Also included is a phonograph with records, a 16 movie projector, handcraft equipment, and tools for wood carving, painting and drawing equipment. The third kit, Kit "C", is composed of office supplies.

On the social service side, the workers will visit in the wards, help soldiers with their problems, help letters or send cables for them, and packages and personal shopping for the patients. The assistant field director also will have funds so that money can be loaned or granted to soldiers in case of need or emergencies.

SHARE ALL HAZARDS

Overseas, the Red Cross unit would share all the hazards and emergencies of the organization to which it is attached. "In the event it should be sent overseas," Mrs. Hordeman says, "it will be ready for any eventuality and glad to share it. Just because one is a recreational or social worker with the Red Cross doesn't mean one will always be recreational or social work while with an organization. In an emergency we will do anything we are asked to do—pitch in with the nurses on detail work or anything else. We will be prepared to wash out of helmets or undergo any other discomforts and put out our fit may undergo. We will share and fare as they do."

Workers in such a unit are careful medical inspectors at Fort Benning, will shortly leave for the School of Military Government at Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., where training is being given Army officers for administration of occupied countries.

Captain Perkins, who has been at Fort Benning since November 1942, is a former resident of Bartlesville, Okla., where he was district manager of several electric utilities. He had previously occupied the chair of civil engineering at Oklahoma A. & M.

Among the captain's duties as assistant post medical inspector was that of serving on the Mosquito Control Board which is one of the most extensive projects of his sort in the Army. The efficacy of this work is evidenced by the fact that in an area conducive to the breeding of malarial mosquitoes the disease is virtually nonexistent at Fort Benning through the efforts of the Control Board.

fully selected by the Red Cross national headquarters, and all of them have had experience in the lines to which they are assigned. Mrs. Hordeman, after obtaining a B. A. degree at the University of Wyoming, did graduate work in social service administration at the University of Chicago. She also has served as a social worker with the Wyoming Department of Child Welfare. She has been with the Red Cross since April 1, 1942, and has served in the capacity of assistant field director at Camp Chafee, Ark., and Camp Phillips, Kans.

Miss Jennings, who has an M. A. degree in social service from the University of Chicago, was affiliated with United Children in Chicago before joining the Red Cross in June. Miss Downs, "who also began her Red Cross work in June, has done graduate work at the University of Colorado and the University of Iowa.

Miss Coman, also in the recreational work, was a student of the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York City, and has been associated with Junior Programs, Inc., prior to last May, when she came with the Red Cross.

Miss Young, who has done graduate work at Margaret Morrison College—a branch of Carnegie Tech—was a secretary and liaison worker with the Department of State prior to beginning her Red Cross work in June, 1943.

Unit Library Provided 20th Company, 1st STR

Captain Edwin J. Cannan and 1st Lieutenant Samuel L. Pfeffer, both of the 20th company, First Student Training Regiment, have arranged for the company what might well be called "a unit library." This library is composed of approximately one hundred and twenty-five books of a wide selection including history, fiction by the best fiction authors, encyclopedias and poetry along with the complete volumes of the work of Kipling and Stevenson.

The library is managed under a system similar to the regular library checking system. The charge of quarters acts as librarian and keeps a numbered file on all books. The reader is allowed to keep a book for a period of seven days after which the book must be returned or brought back and renewed.

Captain Perkins To Attend Military Government School

Captain C. E. Perkins, assistant post medical inspector at Fort Benning, will shortly leave for the School of Military Government at Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., where training is being given Army officers for administration of occupied countries.

Among the captain's duties as assistant post medical inspector was that of serving on the Mosquito Control Board which is one of the most extensive projects of his sort in the Army. The efficacy of this work is evidenced by the fact that in an area conducive to the breeding of malarial mosquitoes the disease is virtually nonexistent at Fort Benning through the efforts of the Control Board.

She also has served as a social worker with the Wyoming Department of Child Welfare. She has been with the Red Cross since April 1, 1942, and has served in the capacity of assistant field director at Camp Chafee, Ark., and Camp Phillips, Kans.

Miss Jennings, who has an M. A. degree in social service from the University of Chicago, was affiliated with United Children in Chicago before joining the Red Cross in June. Miss Downs, "who also began her Red Cross work in June, has done graduate work at the University of Colorado and the University of Iowa.

Miss Coman, also in the recreational work, was a student of the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York City, and has been associated with Junior Programs, Inc., prior to last May, when she came with the Red Cross.

Miss Young, who has done graduate work at Margaret Morrison College—a branch of Carnegie Tech—was a secretary and liaison worker with the Department of State prior to beginning her Red Cross work in June, 1943.

Asiatie War Veteran Now With Third Training Reg't.

A vast store of knowledge of the problems faced by troops overseas has been brought to the Third Student Training Regiment, the Infantry School, with the assignment to this unit of Lt. Col. Charles K. Dillingham, veteran of several theaters in both the current conflict and the World War.

Colonel Dillingham, a brisk, military figure, has been attached to the Infantry School, where he was selected to command an infantry regiment cadre sent back by his Division to Camp Beale, Calif. From there he was ordered to report to Fort Benning.

EIGHT MEDALS

In both wars, Colonel Dillingham has found himself in the most active areas of operation. He wears eight medals as the result of this service, five from the last war and three from this one. His World War medals are the Distinguished Service Cross, the Purple Heart, the Victory Medal with four bars, the British General Service Medal and the Croix de Guerre with gilt star. In this war he has been decorated with the American Defense Medal, the Asiatic-Pacific Medal, and the Army of Occupation Medal.

Colonel Dillingham's military service started with his enlistment Sept. 27, 1909, as a private in Company B, Second Infantry of the United States. He was promoted to sergeant in 1912, and to captain in 1915. Upon his removal to New Jersey, he entered Battery A, Field Artillery of the New Jersey National Guard on May 16, 1912.

With the outbreak of the World War, Colonel Dillingham on May 14, 1917, was received in the First Officer Training Camp, Ft. Myer, Va., from which he was graduated with a second lieutenant's commission the following August.

He thereupon was assigned to the 318th Infantry of the 80th Division at Camp Lee, Va., the regiment with which he was to serve throughout the war in France with the exception of a brief period on detached service with the British 52nd Division at shell, wrecked, bloody Vimy Ridge.

WOUNDED IN ARGONNE

During the last phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, the colonel was wounded by shell fragments in an attack at Sivry-la-Buzance on Nov. 3, 1918, only a few days before the Armistice.

Colonel Dillingham was discharged as a first lieutenant at Camp Lee on June 4, 1919, and immediately thereafter commissioned in the same rank in the Reserves. He was promoted to captain in 1923, to major in 1930, and to lieutenant colonel March 16, 1937.

In his home city of Plainfield, N. J., and throughout the State and New York, Colonel Dillingham has been prominent for the past 20 years in veteran and military affairs.

In civilian life a textile engineer, the colonel holds degrees

Special Service Presents Noted Song Leader

Tenor O'Brien To Be On Post 4 More Days For Series of Concerts

Furthering the program of the Special Service Division of the War Department for a "singin' army," the Special Service office in post headquarters is presenting Donald O'Brien, song leader, and William Conway, piano accompanist, to Fort Benning this week. The two will be at the post four more days. Lt. Col. Charles C. Finnegan, special service officer, announced.

Singer O'Brien and Pianist Conway are playing service clubs, hospitals, beer gardens and leading GI group singing.

O'Brien, a well known light operatic tenor, is touring army camps and naval stations under auspices of USO-Camp Shows. Conway, his accompanist, has toured the world and is himself no stranger in the concert field.

O'Brien entered show business by singing "Mother Macree" in a parish entertainment in the town of Ansonia, Conn. After his debut in New York's Carnegie Hall as a concert singer when he was by 25 years old, the singer has toured in vaudeville, made phonographic recordings and has appeared in Broadway shows, motion pictures and on many radio programs.

The Irish-American has recorded numerous Irish songs and ballads from the operettas and is introducing to service men on his current tour his newest ballad, "Maureen," which has not yet been recorded or published.

mess in the Fourth Service Command will have an opportunity to win the flag this month.

Basis for the presentation of the award is keeping food supplies adjusted to current needs; storing and care of supplies; food preparation including cooking; serving of food; proper use of left overs; overall food waste control; cleanliness and sanitary conditions of mess; cleanliness of mess personnel; conditions of mess equipment; use of mess card; attractiveness of mess; operating efficiency; plate waste.

Several of the competing messes pushed the winner for "E" honors, having shown marked improvement during the past month. Major Alexander Veazey declared.

46 States, Four Nations Represented In 538th

Mess Sergeant-Solves Food Problem; He Serves 'Em All Hash

"East is East and West is West At Benning the twain shall meet."

In fact, they've met already, along with the North and South and the in-between—from 46 states they've come to make up the 538th Armored Infantry Battalion.

Only Vermont and Rhode Island are not represented in this command, according to Major Milledge M. Beckwith, who heads the new unit.

Not content with being one of the Army's most representative American battalions, the 538th adds a dash of the cosmopolitan to its roster—including men from Czechoslovakia, Canada, Russia, the Philippines and Hawaii.

The mess officer shuddered at the prospect of being expected to serve Columbia River salmon and Chattanooga chicken, Boston baked beans and frijoles a la chile con carne, corn pone and pumpnickle, venison and roast possum all on the same table.

Here was trouble. So he at once went to the mess sergeant and asked him what he intended doing about it.

"I've already fixed that up," the sergeant explained. "They're all Americans, ain't they? I just feed 'em hash."

Leaders Clash Tonight In Hot Softball Race

176th Ten Plays Parachute Club; Profs Also Involved In Deadlock

Two of the three tens now tied for the loop lead in the Fort Benning football circuit will clash tonight at the Parachute School diamond when the 1st Academic Company, first-half titlist, entertain the vastly-improved 176th Spirits.

Both teams have won their first two games along with the Academic Regiment Profs and now share a three-way tie for top honors in the second-half race which got under way last Thursday. Deadlocked for fourth place, one full game behind are the Lawson Field Flyers and 124th Gators, both strong teams.

NO HIT GAME

Highlight of the week was another no-hit, no run game turned in by Earl Varchmin. First Academic Company's crack hurler, against the new 233rd Quartermasters on Tuesday night. The game went seven innings with Varchmin fanning 14 of the 21 men he faced. Only one man of the Q. M. ten reached first on a walk and he was quickly wiped out on a double play.

The chutists scored their only run in the second frame on the only hit given up by the 233rd pitcher. It was a double by Johnny Long which followed a walk and accounted for the lone tally of the ball game.

PROFS WIN TWO

First Academic won its opener with Third STR last Thursday by a 10-5 count to step off on the right foot. The Academic Regiment, which finished high in the first-half won a pair of games from the Station Hospital by 13-3 and the 124th Gators by a 4-0 count.

Greatest surprise was the improved 176th ten which tripped the 233rd Q. M., 6-1, and then followed with an 8-0 lacing of the Third STR on Tuesday night. Other results saw the 124th Gators blank Lawson Field by 6-0 and the Flyers topple the Medicos by a 5-1 count.

ALL TEAMS PLAY

Besides tonight's feature tie between the Spirits and the Chutists, three other games are on tap. Lawson Field invades the domain of the Academic Regiment, the Gators travel up to Station Hospital, and the 233rd Q. M. journeys to Harmony Church for a tie-up battle with the Third STR ten.

Next Tuesday night, the 124th entertains the Third Regiment. Lawson Field plays host to the First Academics, the Spirits meet the Medicos on their home diamond, and the Academic Profs play at the 233rd field.

ASTP Goldbricks Trim 225th Nine In Opening Toss

Opening the second half schedule of the Post-Bayonet league last Thursday against the 225th Station Hospital, the ASTP, 4th Training Regiment, "Goldbricks," trimmed the Medicos to the tune of 17 to 2.

Though newcomers to the league, the ASTP "Goldbricks" displayed a keenness that should make the rest of the Post League sit up and take notice. The "Goldbricks" hit in the pinches and played the field flawlessly.

Charles D. Burdette, ASTP trainee and former ace of Ohio University's pitching staff, in his debut for the "Goldbricks," was superb, allowing but one hit in five innings. Burdette, however, except for that slight lapse, pitched invincible ball, never being in trouble and allowing not a single opponent to reach second.

Robert W. Beck, ASTP trainee and former hurler of Indiana University took over for the "Goldbricks" in the 6th inning and gave up only one hit while pitching scoreless ball.

In the attack the ASTP "Goldbricks" were spark-plugged by another former Indiana University star, Duwayne W. Hodges, an ASTP trainee. Hodges played a sterling brand of ball at center-field, scintillated at bat, banging out two home-runs, while hitting 4 for 5.

Reception Center Off to Fast Start With 3 Wins

Orphans Lead Service League After First Week of 2nd Half

Winning three games in six days, the crack Reception Center nine got off to a fast start in the second-half race of the Service League to take over first place in the loop standings this week.

Two other clubs, the First STR Red Sox and Provisional Truck Reds, won one apiece and then lost to a nine-inning 5-3 deadlock on Tuesday night in a game that was called on account of darkness at Tanker Field at Harmony Church area. The title will be replayed at a later date.

R. C. WINS EASILY

The R. C. Orphans pounded out a 10-1 win over the Third STR Panthers, romped over the Military Police Blue Sox, 16-0, and then just barely eked out a 5-4 victory over Post Detachment to account for their commanding lead.

The Red Sox bested the PR Blues, 5-3, at Gowdy Field Saturday night for their win, while the Reds trounced the Medical Detachment 11-5, for their opening verdict. The Medicos, who just entered the second-half race, upset the Blues on Monday night when they took the Blues into camp by a 9-5

Profs Seek Revenge In Arclight Battle With Foxes Tonight

The Academic Profs will be seeking revenge for an early season defeat tonight when they face the powerful Columbus Foxes in an arclight game at Gowdy Field which is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Several weeks ago the city tossers handed the current post champs a set-back in a close game at Golden Park in downtown Columbus, and thereby became the only club to gain a upper hand in the Profs this season. The Academics have dropped several games at the post, but they were to teams they had already beaten earlier in the campaign.

In an effort to top the Foxes, Link Herb Moore will send either Bill Bobo, lanky right-hander, or Lefty Lehner to the mound. Bobo, who is unbeaten in 11-0 league competition, is the most logical choice since Lehner was the hurler beaten by Columbus in the first tilt.

Joe Gilpin, the crafty right-handed veteran who topped the Benning champs by a 2-1 count and set them down with only a few hits, will probably try to duplicate that trick tonight for the Foxes. Behind him, he will have a hard-hitting club that has compiled an amazing record against Benning nines this season.

Parachute Nine Tops Post Loop With Four Wins

TPS Tossers Down 4th Regiment For 513th In Second

The Parachute Club continued in first place in the six-team Fort Benning League during the past week's play by gamely defeating the 4th Regiment in a Tuesday night over the brand new Fourth Training Regiment nine in a game at Brigade Field in the Harmony Church area.

It was the fourth straight win for the chutists and enabled them to remain the only unbeaten club in the circuit. Meanwhile the 513th Parachutes stayed close on the heels of the school lads by pounding out a 5-1 win over Lawson Field at Gowdy Field also on Tuesday.

Lefty Newman, lanky southpaw find of the Thirties, was on the mound for the victors and hurled air-tight ball as the Flyers went down to their third loop loss against only one hit.

Most notable event of the week in the Fort Benning League was the debut of the new Fourth Regiment nine that snatched the 233rd General Hospital club. The "Big Four" won its opener on Friday at Brigade Field by trouncing the 225th Station Hospital, 17-2.

And then gave the TPS nine a real battle Tuesday.

GAME TONIGHT
Tonight's action will pit Parachute school against the 225th in the Gowdy Field opener at 8:30. The Academic Profs facing Columbus in an exhibition at 8:30. Tomorrow night, Fourth Regiment invades the main post for a tilt with the 53rd Genl Hospital at Medico Field, while the same two teams meet Sunday at Gowdy Field at 1:30. The nighttime of Sunday night will see the Flyers fight against TPS at 3:30. Next Tuesday, the 53rd and 513th Clash at Gowdy Field at 7 o'clock.

Box Score: "Goldbricks" 17 runs, 14 hits and no errors. Batteries—Burdette, Beck and Carter. "Medicos" 2 runs, 2 hits and no errors. Batteries—Denchok and Moore.

Blackwell Hurls No-Hitter For Gators

REF. JOHNNY WILSON is perfectly framed in this splendid action shot taken by Sgt. Mel Stock, Signal Lab lens-snapper, at last Friday's bouts in Doughboy Stadium between the 3rd STR Panthers and Tuskegee's famed Bent Bezier Club. The visitors won six of ten bouts to take the trophy put up by the F. B. A. A. This photo is graphic evidence of Wilson's alertness which he exhibited throughout the ten-bout card. (U. S. Panthers Bow to Tuskegee Team In Fast Ring Card Before 7,500

Bent Bezier Club Wins Six Of Ten Bouts For Cup

There was action galore in the squared circle at Doughboy Stadium last Friday as close to 7,500 rabid fight fans sat through a drizzling rain to watch the Bent Bezier Club from Tuskegee dull the claws of the Fort Benning Panthers in an all-colored ring card.

The final score was 13-8 in favor of the visitors from Alabama, with the Bent Bezier's gaining the nod in six of the ten bouts. After the match, the winners were awarded a handsome silver loving cup, which had been offered as booty by the Fort Benning Athletic Association, sponsors of the exciting card.

DANIELS LICKED

The verdict in the first intercamp ring match of the outdoor season was in doubt right up to the final bout between Dynamite Daniels, fiercest of the fort, and Ed Perry, a snappy Tuskegee puncher. But Daniels had a bad night and could not cope with the height and reach advantage he spotted his rival and verdict went to the Bent Bezier ace in a five-round windup attraction.

Dynamite fought hard but didn't seem to have his usual snap as he bowed to Perry, also a former contender, in a close fight. Perry bled and did not cope with the height and reach advantage he spotted his rival and verdict went to the Bent Bezier ace in a five-round windup attraction.

Did you ever wonder who performed the hair-raising, death-defying stunt work in Hollywood for the Johnny Weissmuller Tarzan "clicks"? It was none other than Candidate Henry (Hank) Akers of the 17th Company, Third Student Training Regiment, doubling for that brilliant screen star.

EXPERT DIVER

Born in Baltimore, Md., March 15, 1914, the son of a sea captain, Hank, from a very early age practically lived in the water and as a result of that environment, became an expert in swimming and diving.

In 17th Company's physical conditioning program, "catlike" Candidate Akers slips over the obstacle course with the greatest of ease.

one round to give Benning the edge once more, but Tuskegee quickly evened the count when Nelson Wright TKO'd Russell Booker early in the third round. Tuskegee's Herman Collins surprised the fans when he upset Terry Livingston in a fast scrap.

Hardest knockdown of the evening was scored by Oris Smith, 3rd STR husky, who forced Tommy Horne to take the count of ten after only two minutes and 20 seconds of the opening round. In the best bout of the evening, the semi-windup, Tuskegee's clever LeRoy Boston out-manuevered Jimmy Mitchell to gain the judges' decision. Then came the downfall of Dynamite Daniels, and it was curtains for the Panthers after a really exciting evening of gloved battling.

124th Shares Circuit Lead With Spirits As Profs, Eagles Falter

Gators In Spotlight As Mound Ace Hurls Perfect Game Against 764th

BY SGT. MILTON LUBAN

With Ewell Blackwell pitching a no-hit, no-run game, the spotlight this week is definitely focused on the 124th Gators, now sharing the lead in the Infantry School league with the 176th Spirits. The Gators had taken over sole possession of first place with Blackwell's no-hitter over the 764th Tanks on Sunday, but the Spirit win over the Artillery Group on Tuesday knocked up the race again.

Blackwell's game was practically a perfect one, only 29 men facing him. No walks were given up, but three men reached first on errors. One was promptly erased on a double play; the others were left on base.

Other highlights of last week were the ninth inning rallies staged Sunday afternoon by the Spirits and the Rifles to win their respective ball games.

SPIRITS RALL

The 176th went into the ninth inning trailing the Sixth Training Regiment, 3 to 2. Then, with one out, Sahara reached first on an error. Up came Pat Cooper to win his own game with a tremendous blast over the left field fence.

In the next game the Third STR went into the ninth trailing the Artillery group, 7 to 5. Then, with two away and Glick on first, McAlon reached first through an error. Struckled doubled to score Glick and came in on Berry's fielders choice. Sorrel drew a walk and Silverman slashed out a solid liner to drive in the winning run.

EASY FOR EAGLES

Other results saw the Eagles trounce the 764th Tanks on Friday at Gowdy Field, 15 to 1, while the Monday night, also at Gowdy Field, the Academic Regiment rofs tore into the Rifles for a 10-1 pasting. At Gowdy Field last Thursday, the Gators edged out the 300th, 6-4.

Losing the opener to the Spirits, 2-0, the Gators have now won six straight. With Blackwell and Christie, the 124th can boast the strongest mound corps in the league, while the Spirits in Wiseman, Cooper and Schultz are rated just a shade behind.

Both teams have skillful, but weak hitting, receivers in Stoke and Sahara.

HITTING EDGE

As the team the Gators have a sharp edge in hitting. Their infield, consisting of Belin, Ankrom, Powell and Inoff, can sock the ball, but is rather erratic in the fielding end. The outfield is a good one and in Vern Smith the Gators have a really brilliant flyhawk.

EWELL BLACKWELL

The Spirits have an ace infield, led by the spectacular Ramazzotti, a consistent outfielder and, while the team batting is weak, two dangerous hitters in Ramirez and Lohr.

So there they are; take your pick. Meanwhile the Academic Regiment is 124th, Page 7.

Blackwell Fans Dozen Tankers In No-Hitter

Gator Right-Hander Enters Mythical Hall of Fame

Ewell Blackwell, tall Gator right-hander, pitched his way into Fort Benning's Hall of Fame in defeating the 764th Tank Battalion, 4 to 0, on the Harmony Church Field last Sunday to extend the 124th Infantry's present win streak to six straight and strengthen their hold on first place in the TIS League.

Blackie, who was with Syracuse last year in the International League, hurled no-hit, no run ball all the way and retired 12 Tankers via the str ike-out route. Three 764th players reached first on errors during the game, but lal now boasts a 1.27 earned run average.

TANKER HURLS WELL
The Gators had trouble in solving the slams of Ferrero, the Tanker, who allowed seven safeties. They capitalized once in the third on Vern Smith's long triple to center and twice in the 5th on Merl Stoker's single, two walks and a Tanker error. The fourth and final Gator tally was the result of Ernie Ankrom's second home run in as many games.

The no-hitter was Blackwell's third straight TIS victory and he now boasts a .27 earned run average.

Red Sox Invade Atlanta Tonight for Return Tilt Against Black Crackers

Strong 1st STR Nine
Anxious To Avenge
Earlier Defeat

Fort Benning's first-half Service League champs, the 1st STR Nine, invade Atlanta tonight for a feature battle with the famed Atlanta Black Crackers. The game will start in Ponce de Leon Park at 7:30 under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Constitution. It will be broadcast over WGST and Benning fans may follow the game by dialing that station.

Tonight's affair will be something in the nature of a grudge battle for the Red Sox who will be out to redeem themselves for the ignominious trouncing they took at the hands of the Crax on June 16th. In that mixup, the Sox went into the sixth frame leading with a tally of 6-2. The Crax, however, scored errors in that inning and the alert Crackers cracked down. The game wound up a 12-6 triumph for Atlanta's favor.

CONNOR TUTTORS
The Sox perform under the expert tutelage of Captain Joe O'Connor, who, in civilian life, was a pro third baseman. Joe has the team worked down to a fine edge and confidently expects to even the tally in tonight's game. The captain expects to pitch.

His second pitcher, Robert L. Romby, and use Clarence Winbush behind the plate. Winbush, a brilliant loudmouth, has amazing catches, is well known to Service League fans. He has worked the six toughest games this season. Romby, who has allowed a total of thirty-three hits. He has a terrific fast ball.

that simply can't be seen. In 62 times at bat he has compiled a rather neat batting average of .467. When not working on the mound, he is in left-field working with the same polish and efficiency as when he is mowing down the opposing sluggers.

Winbush is another of the Red Sox workhorses and has caught in almost every game this season and in 53 times at bat has scraped up a no mean average of .411.

WASH BATS 608
Big John Washington, the spectacular first sacker, will be in his usual place in tonight's game. Wash can always be counted on to deliver an outstanding game of baseball and is considered by the majority of fans to be the best first baseman in the league. However, Washington's batting average has dropped off a bit and he now has a .385 batting average with only 406 in 88 times at bat.

HAYNESWORTH SPARKS
Eugene Randolph, who held the Service League slugging lead with an average of .547, ran into a slump that cut his way down to .476 in 63 trips to the plate. Randy is to be remembered as the party who limped out of the game a few weeks ago for the longest hit of the season at Gowdy Field.

SOL SCHIFF, four times national tennis champ, author of a textbook on the game, and member of U. S. teams which swept through Europe in championship play, will appear in an exhibition of his skill next Wednesday and Thursday at Doughboy Stadium as part of the Camel Caravan show. Schiff and his partner, Cal Skinner, will perform trick shots and play an exhibition game.

Homer In Ninth By Cooper Wins For 176th Club

Pitcher Wins Own Game With 360-Foot Clout Against Eagles

BY PVT. AL SHAPIRO

Pat Cooper was mad! He was sizzling. Here it was the first half of the ninth inning, and the Sixth Training Regiment Eagles were beating him by a 3-2 score. The 176th Infantry Spirits had one man on base, one out and the fans begging for a hit. But Pat hit his lips, grabbed that bat tightly, and swung viciously at the first pitch. With a mighty roar, the crowd surged to their feet, as the ball cleared the left field fence for a 360-foot home run, sending in "Sparky" Sahara from second with the tying run, with Pat scoring the winning run himself.

Letty Wisemann came in to pitch in the last half of the ninth, set down the Eagles, the Spirits, winning 4-3. The Eagles had two left-handed pinch-hitters coming up, and for strategic reasons Wisemann brought in the right-hander, the outfielder, and the pitcher, RIP ROARING GAME.

The ball game started off in a rip-roaring fashion. The Eagles scored two runs in the last half of the second to put them ahead 2-0. It wasn't until the eighth of the fifth that the Spirit fans saw the chance to sound their war-whoops. Cooper, who looked mad all day long when he was swinging that big bat of his, hit a double to right field. The Spirits were behind, and the bleachers started beating their gums. "We want a hit!" Let's Go Spirit!

Cooper hit a second, Erb hit the ball towards second and Pat was caught in a rundown and tagged out. Erb said at first, "out, one man on, and Lohr up. Lohr was safe at second on an error, moving Erb to third.

RAMBLING HITS
Captain Ram Ramazzotti was the next batter. He most dangerous man in the Spirit lineup. Ball one, Erb hit a foul ball. The tension increased. The next ball was a single that chased Erb in from third, and Lohr from second with the tying run.

Cooper pitched beautiful ball, and was especially good in the last half of the sixth inning. With one away, men on second and third, Pat struck out the next two batters in six pitched balls. He had nine strike-outs in eight innings.

COLORFUL TEAM
Once again the Spirits proved themselves the most colorful team on the post. They have the facility of coming up with spectacular plays at the most opportune moments and the bleachers count themselves a part of the team with their coaching from the side lines and all-out enthusiasm.

ment and the Sixth Training Regiment are still to be reckoned with. The two teams clashed last night after the Bayonet had gone to press, but even though the loser might be considered out of the race, either team is capable of beating any club in the league at any time.

The Prof's, who play the Columbus Foxes at Gowdy Field tonight, took the first-half post title and are certainly as strong as they were in the first half. They have a strong pitching crew in Rundus, Dickinson, Bobo and Lehner; probably the tightest infield in the league with Moore, Zientara, Russo and Prasse; and four good, hard-hitting outfielders in Neibler, Dabbs, Cox and Mercer.

EAGLES STRONG
The Eagles with Prendergast, DeVolder and Carlson have three pitchers any one of whom is liable to stand any team on its ear. In Simmons they have the best catcher on the post, while McCuskey is a high-level, high-level, high-level hitter. Wright, Oswald and Bamberger round out a capable infield which at times tends to get a little shaky.

The outfield, paced by husky Red Kemmerer, is a sound-hitting, sure-fielding collection of gardeners.

Yes, the Gators and Spirits are sharing the lead, but it will still pay to keep a wary eye on the Prof's and Eagles.

Gators Capture Loop Lead With Win Over 300th

124th Tossers Step To Head of Pack With 6-4 Win

BY CORP. ED FOGG

A revised, hard hitting 124th Infantry nine, swept into undisputed possession of first place in the Infantry School League last Thursday and ran their win streak to five straight by virtue of a 6-4 win over the 300th Infantry at Gowdy Field.

Coach Don Shaffer installing two new men, Jake Powell and Bill Elbertson in the lineup, added power at the plate and the team as a whole hit better to gather 11 hits, five going for extra bases, off Cave who was the losing hurler.

Lew Christie, Gator right hander, allowed but three hits for seven innings, but ran into difficulty in the eighth, as one error and four scratches hit netted three runs and brought the 300th within one run of tying the game. Chris was taken out and Ewell Blackwell, the Gator's new hurler, who beat the 300th last Monday, took over on the mound and snapped the rally by forcing Francis to ground out.

ANKROM HOMERS
Ernie Ankrom, Gator second baseman lifted one of Cave's fast balls out of the park in the first inning to score Inoff ahead of him, and the Gators were in front, never to be headed. Jake Powell added two more tallies in the fifth, driving Stoker and Smith home with a long double to right.

300TH THREATENS
The short 300th had added a run to their total in the sixth on Ankrom's double and Belin's single, the 300th opened up a double play, but the Gators, led by bingles by Koivisto, Kunkel, Graham, and Symank, and three runs by drive Christie to the showers and Bring in Blackwell to shut off the rally.

The Gators clinched the game in their half of the eighth on doubles by Rogers and Stoker to extend their win streak to five straight.

Eagles Sweep Aside 764th In 15-1 Win

The 6th Training Regiment swept over the Tankers of the 764th Tank Battalion last Friday night at Gowdy Field with a decisive 15-1 victory. Ed DeVolder and Cliff Carlson, the Eagle hurlers, kept the Tankers to 6 scattered hits while their teammates capitalized on 13 hits for the 15 runs.

The Tankers scored their lone hit in the first inning when Fields doubled, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Shortwell's long fly.

The Eagles bunched 9 runs in the second inning and added 5 in the third, 4 in the fifth. The game went into 7 innings. Bryce Osborne and Tommy Ryan led the Eagle barmen with 3 bingles each. Red McCluskey, Oswald, Ryan, and DeVolder all hit doubles and McCluskey also hit a triple.

Parachute Ten Tops City Club

The First Academic company of the Parachute school Friday night defeated the Columbus Reds by the score of 18-4 in a softball tilt.

Physical Training Is Antidote For Fatigue

In order to successfully combat fatigue and listlessness caused by long hours of duty, the First Student Training Regiment has instituted and put into force a physical training program for its permanent staff of officers.

Under the organization and guidance of the regimental commander, Col. John S. Rooms, there has been allotted a specific time for each officer to devote at least two hours every week to physical training. These allotted periods have been arranged so that groups of officers throughout the regiment will be able to meet on Glenn field and combine their activities into group games. The participants in such sports will be organized into teams and allowed to make their choice of activities.

CHOICE IS OFFERED
In order that each officer may feel free to relax and thoroughly enjoy himself, thereby getting more good out of the program, a list of activities have been drawn up from which a man may make a choice of either softball, volleyball, touch football, medicine ball, setting up exercises, golf, swimming, wrestling, and in fact, just about any activity that a man could wish for. This is strictly an athletic program to bring zest and pep into the lives of men who live long hours of supervisory work, and a definite plan of athletics will make a man get and think in a more efficient manner.

Colonel Rooms arrived at this decision to institute such a plan when, after close observation, he became aware of the fact that the average tactical officer arrived on the job before 8:00 A. M. every morning, stay constantly on the job until after the evening meal at 6:15 or 7:00 P. M. Quite frequently it then becomes necessary for an officer to keep several previously arranged appointments with men of the student class. Thus, as Colonel Rooms pointed out, a man does not get any rest he feel equal to, any time available for exercise.

Under the new plan, two afternoons per week have been set aside during which a man must avail himself of the opportunity to improve both his work and his health. To facilitate those men who are non-residents of the post, and whose athletic endeavors had heretofore been confined to riding a shock bus, a designated building has been set aside for lockers and showers. Old clothes or athletic shorts are the order of the day and emphasis is placed on exercise and good health.

The program was first announced and put into force the week of July 12th, and immediately met with the approval of the officers concerned. Many of the men were found to have banded themselves into groups with a challenge that they can lick any other similar group of officers at any game they might care to choose.

An Army Wife Shops In Columbus

By Phyllis

Of particular interest to you who cherish individuality in your fashioning of clothes, is the military displayed by Mrs. Slattery of the KAYSER-LILIENTHAL, INC. HAT SHOP. Recently returning from a business visit in New York, Mrs. Slattery has a wonderful array of non-sport velvet hats to please the most exacting tastes. From wide brims, high-profile berets, and cloche styles are all exceedingly chic. Black, brown and such mel-in-your-mouth shades as Flying Blue, Amethyst, Wild Grape, Gayety Rose, Colonial Green, Caramel, Russet Earth, Fiesta Purple are especially appealing in these hats of finest velvet. Matching hat and bag sets in these striking shades are ready to add a dashing touch to many a smart fall outfit. For a cool, chocolate-mint soda, or a large, frosty glass of fresh orange juice! Of course there isn't, can say that with conviction. The actually seen many of you perk up noticeably after a visit to THE CITY PHARMACY.

This cool and attractively decorated drug store is the meeting-place for business-men and shoppers, anxious for a bit of refreshment. In this store, too, I've especially liked the super-selection for each and every customer. And the soda fountain dispenses, not sodas, alone. No, indeed, the luncheon served here are enjoyed especially by those whose system just can't stand another "ham on rye." Frosty drinks, appetizing luncheon, or afternoon tea, you'll enjoy them all at the CITY PHARMACY, directly opposite the Waverly Hotel.

You may be one of the active women with part of the world on their shoulders, to the Red Cross classes, to a daily job. A fur coat somewhat fills this practical, forthright, score. Coats of distinction, by designers determined to prove that a fur coat is a long term investment, are displayed by the J. A. KIRVEN COMPANY. These seal dyed muskrat, grey squirrel, natural muskrat, sable-dyed muskrat, sable-dyed coney, and black kid coats are perfect for all-around-the-clock life. Unusually attractive are the black kid coats, many beautifully lined with Royal Duchess satin. The skirt of the coat is long enough for a free stride without having a bulky appearance. The plain neckline is perfectly cut to flatter in off a smooth line. Each and every one of these coats may be called a fashion valuable. I say "fashion valuable," for each coat assures lasting quality, enduring charm, and timeless design.

Not everything I mention in this column can be all glamour and fashion. It's about time I discussed something which is familiar to us all—the good old-fashioned dish towel. They're found in every household and they do wear out on occasion and so new ones are in order. The BEARS ROEBUCK COMPANY has an assortment of kitchen towels and towels already hemmed. The colors in both the stripes and the solid shades, on a spanking white background. The 5 per cent linen, 35 per cent cotton toweling of green or blue checks on a white background might easily be, with a bit of patience, stitched into dozens of kitchen helpers. For those of you who are impatient and unskilled with needle and thread the already finished dish towels are the most attractive buy. Whether you want simply striped towels or elaborately flowered ones you'll be delighted with the prices and designs featured by Sears Roebuck Company.

The old adage "Absence makes the heart grow fonder" is not always true these days. But the presence of a fine photograph which really looks like you will mean much to your loved ones. The excellent life-like work of the AIME DUPOINT STUDIO is a guarantee that the picture you may give your family will make them almost as happy as they'd be if you were really with them. All members of the various branches of the United States Army have at least one relative anxious for a portrait picturing the Officer Candidate, the WAC, the Army Nurse, the Officer, as he is remembered best. The DuPont Studio makes every effort to catch the twinkling eyes, crooked smile, or the somber, thoughtful expression which might be so characteristic of the individual. Presently, when a photograph may be so cherished and appreciated by loved ones, the DuPont Studio is the meeting place for those desiring outstanding work.

Public school, boarding school, whatever the prospect may be in store for your children this coming term, you'll want them to have substantial shoes to stand many hours of rough treatment. And then on the other hand, you'll want them to have dresier shoes, just as practical, but more appropriate for special school functions when they'll all "spruce" up a bit.

The Pet Show held Friday July 30, on the playground proved quite interesting and enjoyable to the participants as well as the spectators. The judges in several instances had a difficult time in deciding just which pet to choose to give first place. However, everyone seemed quite satisfied with the judges' decisions in each case.

It was pleasing to see the number of pets entered and except for two dogs that were running close competition for a blue ribbon and finally decided to tangle, the event went along very smoothly. We are sorry if some forgot the event and did not have their pets present to be judged.

The following judges were on hand to assist in this event: Mrs. Rotari, Mrs. Harman, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. Gilliland and Mrs. Doan. The awards were made to the following participants and pets: Largest pet—First, Betty Lou Salter, canary; second, Hollis Elden Huzford.

Oddest pet—Rabbit, Ann Herbert.

Prettiest pet—First, Curtis Herbert; second, J. D. Sayers.

Prettiest dog—First, James Arlen Bray; second, Charles Elliot; third, Glenn Lee Ward.

Youngest pet—First, Anita Louise Hogen; second, Patricia Mar Dunlavage; third, Jimmie Neal.

Homeliest pet—Bobby Davis.

Pet with the most colors—Patricia Ann Green.

Saddest looking pet—Bobby Davis.

Best trained pet—First, Mary Elizabeth Harman; second, J. D. Sayers; third, Glenn Lee Ward.

Oldest pet—First, George Costello; second, Mary Elizabeth Harman; third, J. D. Sayers.

NEW GAMES

Quite a number of new games are on hand for the boys and girls of all ages to play during these hot afternoons. Mrs. Lutz will be on the playground to teach these games and would like to see a large number out to learn the various games. Tables will be put out in the shade on the playground to use in playing. All sorts of children's card games, bowling alley, four in one, bargain day, Polyantha, puzzles and others are among the games you will find. A large sand box and horseshoe pits have been placed on the playground and will be ready for use this week. Volleyball poles are also up for use and net and ball can

TIS Librarian Gets Promotion

Announcement has been made of the promotion of Second Lieutenant Wesley B. Frace, librarian of The Infantry School, to the rank of first lieutenant.

Lt. Frace attended Kemper Military School, Booneville, Mo., and received his LLB degree from West Virginia College, University of Kansas City in 1931. Prior to his enlistment in the army, he was law librarian, Kansas City Court of Appeals.

Lt. Frace enlisted in the army on March 3, 1942, and served with the 125th Infantry. He was selected to attend candidate school and reported here in October 1942. He was commissioned on December 22, 1942, and assigned to The Infantry School as librarian.

HOWARD BUS LINE
SERVICE TO FORT BENNING FOR 22 YEARS

DOING A WARTIME JOB... UNDER WAR TIME CIRCUMSTANCES

HOWARD BUS LINE
906 BROADWAY COLUMBUS, GA.

AFTER CANDIDATES in Fort Benning's Infantry School finish a combat patrol problem such as the capture of an enemy village, they are taken to a "cemetery" on the outskirts for a critique. Numerous "graves" are dug and marked with names of various officer candidates who, during the operations, were guilty of mistakes which may have cost their lives in actual warfare. Above a tactical officer is causing the object lesson to be brought home to the tyros. The slub inscription reads: "Roses are red, violets are blue; if you ain't careful, this one's for you."

Fiji Islands Home Sweet Home to 3rd Regiment OC

To most persons the name Fiji is merely a name for a group of islands in the South Pacific. To the 3rd Regiment, however, it is a home.

The candidates' father, the late Col. Sir Henry Marks, a Commander of the British Empire, was an officer of the Fiji Defense Force and lived the greater part of his life on the island outpost. Geoffrey, youngest of six children, was born 37 years ago in Melbourne, Australia, and was the only one not born in the Fiji Islands.

The Fiji Islands represents only one place on the globe where Candidate Marks can hang his hat as he has obtained his B. S. degree in law three years later. Named to the Honorable Society of the Inner Temple in 1928, he continued his law studies intermittently until 1940, when he received his M. A. from Oxford.

LEARNED NOMAD
From 1929 to 1940, Marks' life was very much that of the intellectual vagabond. A highlight of that period was his trip down the River in a rubber canoe, an expedition which prompted him to write a book, "Down the River and Up to Rome", a volume which today may be found on the shelves of almost any booklover whose interests center on travel.

His travels in 1930 brought him to this country where he commuted between New York and Chicago. In New York he met and married Beatrice Terry, actress and niece of the internationally famous Ellen Terry. He tried his hand at some more writing in this country, returned to England to practice law and, tiring of that, revisited the Fiji Islands for six months.

Post Sergeant Joins 'Yank'

A special order from Washington, D. C., last week sent Sgt. Frederick C. Konzelman of Company H, 300th Infantry of The Infantry School Troops, hurrying to New York where he has taken up his newly assigned editorial duties with Yank, the Army weekly.

Konzelman, who was on cadre to the 5th ASTP regiment at the time the order came through transferring him to New York, is former day news editor of the Detroit Free Press.

It is believed that because of the nature of his former job he will be placed on the copy desk of Yank, which publishes four editions that go to American fighting men in every corner of the globe.

He began as a reporter with the Free Press, and after six years of reporting and copy reading reached the position he held at the time he was inducted. He came to the 300th from Camp Robinson last December.

Within a short time he was promoted to the grade of corporal and then to sergeant. When the cadre was assigned to the Harmony Church Area with the newly organized ASTP group, Konzelman went with them.

Lieut. Gail Gaines, commanding officer of the WAC Detachment, will give the bride in marriage. The ceremony will be performed by Chaplain W. H. Hunt with a reception in the WAC mess hall to follow.

The bride will carry a white satin prayer book with white gladioli, showered with tube roses.

Lt. Williamson Made Captain

Colonel Frank J. Vida, commanding officer of the Provisional Truck Regiment, has announced the recent promotion of First Lieutenant George S. Williamson to the rank of captain.

Captain Williamson, who assumed the duties of adjutant of the Provisional Truck Regiment of the Infantry School troops the day after his promotion, is a native Virginian. Becoming interested in the army, he enlisted in July, 1938, at Roanoke and, within a short time, joined the 27th Infantry at Schofield Barracks, Territory of Hawaii.

Serving abroad until December 1941 he left Oahu en route to the states and enrollment in one of the Officer Candidate Schools. Entering the Infantry School at Fort Benning as a staff sergeant, he was commissioned a second lieutenant on April 10, 1942 and immediately assigned to the Third Student Training Regiment. Serving with that organization as an assistant adjutant and being interested in army personnel work, Captain Williamson's experience and desire for advancement resulted in his being transferred to the regiment he now serves.

A typical Regular Army man, Captain Williamson has demonstrated his desire to master army administration to such a degree that he has not requested a furlough nor leave since joining the army five years ago.

Paratroopers To See 'Just For Laughs'

USO Show Slated For Alabama Area Next Tuesday Night

USO-Camp Shows "Just for Laughs," a fast-paced variety revue which is a counterpart of "Hellzapoppin'," will play to Fort Benning's paratroopers of the Alabama Area next Tuesday, Aug. 10, at 8:45 p. m. The performance will be outdoors except in the event of inclement weather, according to Lt. Col. Charles C. Finnegan, special service officer.

Bobby Pincus, versatile comedian who has been headlined at smart, cafes and supper clubs of New York, London and Paris, is the featured player. Supporting him in various sketches is Mack Pearson, diminutive comic from the Hal Roach studios in Hollywood, who gives impersonations of famous personages.

MANN EMCEE
Jack Mann is master of ceremonies and straight man for the show. He has played night clubs in New York, Boston, Chicago, and other sections of the midwest. Bob Gordon, well-known vaudeville comedian who wrote and staged the sketches, and Ray Janis of musical comedy and radio fame, whose last broadcasting engagement was on the Fred Allen show, are also in "Just for Laughs."

Girls in the show are Ruth Foster, tap dancer, and June Lloyd, acrobatic dancer, and Betty Johnston, singing comedienne of the Betty Hutton type. Nelson and Marsh, dance team, are another combination to flavor the production.

As usual in all the USO-Camp Shows, admission is free to all military personnel.

Air Force Gets Combat Lunch

A special combat lunch for bomber crews on flight missions of from eight to 12 hours' duration has been developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps for the Army Air Forces according to Col. Stephan B. Massey, director of supply at Fort Benning.

The new lunch is packed in units sufficient for three men, and is composed of easily edible food items which can be consumed without further preparation or readily converted into hot dishes when the planes are equipped with electric hot plates or other cooking facilities.

Colonel Massey stated that the lunch consists of pre-cooked rice, lemon powder for lemonade, tea tablets, bouillon cubes, dehydrated beef, biscuits, fruit bars, dried apricots, a stable non-melting canned butter product known as Carter's spread, hard candy, chewing gum, soluble coffee, sugar and salt.

Because of the sharply varying temperatures in which bombers must operate, ranging from 135 degrees above zero on the ground to 50 degrees below in the stratosphere, the food items included in the lunch were selected on the basis of their stability under sudden or protracted changes in temperature, as well as for their compactness, light weight and high nutritive value.

From 1922 to 1937 only two freight vessels were built in American shipyards.

300th Infantry Promotes Twelve Enlisted Bandsmen

Promotion of 12 members of the 300th Infantry band was recently announced by Col. H. J. Hunt, Jr., commanding officer of the regiment.

The band, scarcely a few months old, has already attracted post-wide attention and the advance orchestra composed of members of the band has played at many of the important social functions on the reservation.

Promoted to sergeant was Cpl. Charles F. Funk, director of the band. Pfc. Albert M. Krasic, leader of the dance orchestra, also received sergeant's stripes.

Other bandmen promoted to sergeant were: Cpl. Paul E. South, formerly with Benny Goodman's band; Cpl. Harry W. Summers, T-5 Joe H. Schafer, and Cpl. Lloyd Schieber.

Members of the band who received corporal's rating were: Pfc. Laverne V. Johannsen, Pvt. Simon Velasquez and Pfc. Godfred M. Matson; Maurice B. Smith, Richard S. Gaddy and Jack F. Edwards.

PROMOTIONS

Promotion of two enlisted men has been announced by Supply Detachment, Section One, Fourth Service Command, Fort Benning. Corporal Lewis S. Whitten has been raised to technician fourth grade, and Private First Class Tom L. Maples has been advanced to corporal.

2 Units Join School Troops

Brig. Gen. Henry P. Perrine, commanding general of the School Troops Brigade of the Infantry School announces the arrival of two new units of the Brigade.

They are the 507th Engineers Company and the 252nd Field Artillery Battalion. The former, commanded by Capt. R. S. Burrus, Jr., has been located at the Main Post.

The artillery unit, commanded by Lt. Col. Louis M. R. DeRiemer, is stationed in the Harmony Church area adjacent to the 24th Field Artillery battalion. Both units will be used as demonstration troops.

Gen. Perrine also announced that the 802nd Field Artillery which has been stationed at this post, has been transferred to Fort McClellan, Alabama.

Japs Made No Effort To Hide Lust For Power From Visitors

Says O. C. Who Visited Nippon With College Group

A guest of the Japanese government in 1935 with an American student group, Officer Candidate George Stees of the Ninth Company, Third Student Training Regiment, hopes to return to that nation soon—but as an uninvited and destructive visitor.

Steas was chosen as a representative from Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., to an American-Japanese student conference in Tokyo during his junior year at the school. The conference was arranged as a medium for exchange of views on international law, economics and relations between the two countries.

Japanese student delegates raised a fund to cover traveling expenses for 45 Americans. Stees said. When 90 students from this country were selected to make the trip, the Japanese government took over and footed the entire bill.

Steas said he believes most of the Japanese students at that time were sincere in their professions of friendship. However, during the conference, the Japanese set up their puppet government in Manchuria. The American students were taken on tours of Japanese-occupied territory and shown the "benefits" of Japanese control but no effort was made to excite or even shield the nation's aggressive intentions, the candidate declared.

G. I. Eats Only One Meal Per Day—All Day Long

Uncle Sam's soldiers are the best fed in the world and they should be because they eat 18 out of approximately 24 hours every day, Sundays included.

G. I.'s eat three meals a day in their mess halls where they are served the best food the nation has to offer, cooked by the best cooks in the world, and served to the hungriest guys in the world. But those three meals are only the beginning of the day's eating. Munching between meals is their favorite sport. Between breakfast and dinner—lunch to you—they have cakes, candy bars, maybe a doughnut. N. an apple or cherry turn-over with a glass of milk; or if they are on a hike you can bet they're eating. The PX was sold out of candy bars for those famous ten minute breaks before the outfit started that 17 mile hike.

Dinner is a famous meal for they have meat, vegetables, salads, and a dessert, generous servings too with a fruit drink to wash it down on the side. But does that hold them until supper time? It does not. You just stroll around and see the soda shop, the PXs, the drink dispenser area, the patio grill opened at 4:30 p. m., and then supper. Supper is really a meal and should fix a GI up for the night, but he has just really started on that nibbling by the time he is through with supper and then you should really see "him go to town." The Army Exchange Restaurant with its counter for self-service, the soda shop, the Patio Grill, and all available eating places are crowded until closing time, and then they hang around finishing up after the doors are closed.

Now don't get the idea that all G. I.'s eat all the time. It is just that there are so many of them and they work various schedules that there are always enough with "off hours" to make a crowd at any place. Drinks and peanuts are also sold to the crowds at ball games, so you can see that it takes a man of strong character to resist displays of food and drinks always there for the taking—provided there's still a little loose change in the pocket.

Yank Increases Subscription Rates Effective Sept. 1

Yank, the Army Weekly announced officially that subscription rates to the G. I. publication will be revised effective Sept. 1, 1943. A schedule of old and new rates is given below.

Old rates for Yank subscriptions mailed and postmarked up to and including Aug. 31, 1943: 6 months (35 issues) $1; 1 year (52 issues) $1.50.

New rates for Yank subscriptions mailed and postmarked on or after Sept. 1, 1943: 6 months (26 issues) $1; 1 year (52 issues) $2.

The single copy price of 5 cents will not be affected by the change. It is suggested that soldiers contemplating entering subscriptions mail them to YANK, 205 E. 42nd St., New York 17, N. Y., as early as possible before Sept. 1 in order to take advantage of the low, introductory rates.

October, 1942.

Major Hall Gets College Promotion

Maj. Orville J. Hall, plans and training officer of the Sixth Training Regiment, ASP Basic Training Center of the Infantry School, has been promoted to an associate professorship of rural economics and sociology in the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Major Hall is now on military leave of absence from that faculty on which he has served for 15 years.

An Arkansas alumnus, Major Hall also holds a master's degree from the University of Minnesota and completed further studies at Harvard University. He is the prolific author of organizational and research publications in the fields of economics and agriculture, and even now receives requests for such works from post-war planners all over the world.

ASTP Adds 103 Colleges

145 Now On Roster; To Name Others Later

An additional 103 colleges and universities have been selected for participation in the Army special training program, and commanding generals of the service commands have been authorized to negotiate training contracts immediately, the War Department announced.

The newly designated institutions bring to 145 the number taking part in the training of soldiers for technical studies of modern warfare. Additional schools will be named later, the department said.

Twenty-three of the schools are listed as "star" or "specialized training and reassignment" units. These soldiers are classified for specific types of duty.

By the end of July, the department said, medical instruction will be available at 74 institutions; dental training at 36; veterinary courses at 10; basic phase instruction at 22; advanced engineering courses at 23; foreign area and languages studies at 17; additional courses in agriculture, 9; professional training at 6, and reassignment units at 23.

Among the schools, many of which will conduct training courses in more than one subject, as listed by the Army according to course available (x-indicates schools already in use under the program):

STAR UNITS: (x) Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn; (x) Agricultural and Technical College of North Carolina, Greensboro; (x) North Carolina State College of Agriculture & Engineering, Raleigh; (x) The Citadel, Charleston, S. C.; (x) Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge; (x) University of Alabama, University.

FOR BASIC PHASE: Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn; Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta; The Citadel, Charleston, S. C.; Mississippi State College, State College, University of Alabama, University; (x) Clemson Agricultural College, Clemson, S. C.; North Georgia College, Dahlonega; University of Georgia, Athens; University of Mississippi, University; Vanderbilt University, Nashville; Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge.

FOR ADVANCED ENGINEERING: (x) Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta; University of Florida, Gainesville.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS: University of Mississippi School of Medicine, University; University of Alabama School of Medicine, University of Alabama; University of Tennessee School of Medicine, Knoxville; Emory University School of Medicine, Atlanta; Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, Nashville; Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem, N. C.; University of North Carolina School of Medicine, Chapel Hill; Medical College of the State of South Carolina, Charleston; Duke University School of Medicine, Durham, N. C.; University of Georgia School of Medicine, Augusta; University of Tennessee School of Medicine, Memphis; Meharry Medical College, Department of Medicine, Nashville; Louisiana State University School of Medicine, New Orleans; Tulane University of Louisiana School of Medicine, New Orleans.

FOR DENTAL TRAINING: Atlanta—Southern Dental College, Meharry Medical College Department of Dentistry, Nashville; University of Tennessee School of Dentistry, Memphis; Loyola University School of Dentistry, New Orleans.

FOR VETERINARY MEDICAL TRAINING: Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

FOR PREMEDICAL TRAINING: Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge.

'Clerk-General' Is Expert Scout Of Pacific War

Pvt. James V. Anderson reported to the 6th Training Regiment headquarters, The Infantry School, last week. He was classified "Clerk, general" and was asked just what type of clerical work he'd been doing in the army. Private Anderson cocked his head uncertainly.

"Well, where have you been stationed?" asked the personnel officer. "Most recently in the Fiji Islands and New Zealand," he answered, and added doubtfully, "I wasn't doing clerical work there."

Asked what his assignment had been, he calmly announced that he had been in the combat intelligence platoon of a battalion, being a scout-observer. He picked up tropical fever, was sent home (unsuccessfully torpedoed twice by the Japs on the return voyage) and will undoubtedly be instructing the ASTP Basics in the fine points and scouting and patrolling as he found it in the Pacific against the Japs.

"And that," Private Anderson says with his tongue in his cheek, "is pretty rough work for a clerk, general."

WO Goldsmith Appointed Chief Warrant Officer

Climaxing a period of rapid advancement in the Army of the United States, WO Goldsmith, WO (JG), has recently been promoted to a chief warrant officer, in the personnel section of the Provost Marshal's Regiment, The Infantry School.

His preliminary military training was received at Fort Benning and he served with distinction as a Warrant Officer, Junior Grade, Coming to the Provisional Truck Regiment in December 1942, he was made personnel officer in Regimental Headquarters and has held that job since.

With Civilians MYRTLE JOINES

Sylvia Fleischer formerly with the Machine Record Unit has returned to stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Fleischer, 1900 Calvin street, West Orange, N. J. It is possible that Sylvia will be returning to Benning soon, but we are not too sure.

There have been several changes in the Finance personnel this week. Isabelle Chadwick has been called to the West Coast because of serious illness in her family. Reva Lunn resigned on August 1st, to keep house, and Mrs. Guyola Wilson resigned for reasons to be announced later.

Mary Tamm, Director of Service Club No. 1 announced that her "snack bar" of soft drinks, tid-bits to eat, including that all important candy bar and chewing gum—limit two to a customer. There are six WACs assisting at the club now so soldiers are assured prompt service. A nice new writing room, and pool room where sitting-room on the floor was at a premium. Nice going, Mary.

Winona Andrews of the QMC is spending her vacation at Fort Walton, Pensacola, Fla. And while we are talking about the QMC we would like to give a nice big welcome to Parry Virginia Light who is back at work after an extended illness. We missed Parry. There's just one like her.

Hazel Reed, librarian at Service Club No. 5, is just back from Chicago, Ill. where she spent her vacation with her family. Nell Blackshear of Service Club No. 4 is in Atlanta with her family for a little rest and look-see.

And while we are talking about sick folk getting well and coming back to work let's not forget Sara (Sally to most of us) O'Neal in the Record Section at The Infantry School who is back after two months spent in the LaGrange hospital, LaGrange, Ga.

The civilian personnel some 400 strong will be entertained at an old fashioned barbecue on Sunday, August 9, for all day swimming, eating and what-have-you at the Quartermaster rest camp. Capt. Branch F. Delaney is chairman of the committee with the following civilians as assistants, James B. McCoy—the original—Mrs. Louise Bullard and Mrs. Mary Price with Lt. Maurice A. Sutton, technical adviser or maybe I should say food-expert. At any rate the cooking will begin on Saturday so there will be plenty for all.

Doris Lee of the Infantry School Book Shop has just returned from her honeymoon spent in New York as Mrs. J. H. Faup. Lt. Faup left immediately after their return to Columbus and just Saturday Doris received a cablegram telling of his safe arrival overseas.

Verne Neiderprum formerly of Post headquarters, message center, was a recent visitor on the post. She has returned to Sarasota, Fla. to be with her family for the duration.

Genevieve Burt of the Civilian Personnel Branch spent the week with her mother in Barnesville, Ga.

CAPTAIN CURRY

Colonel John S. Roosa, commander of The First Student Training Regiment, The Infantry School, Fort Benning, has announced the promotion of First Lieutenant Bernard M. Curry to the rank of captain. Captain Curry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Curry of New York City, and is a graduate of Columbia University, having received his LL.B. degree there in 1942. He is also a graduate of Holy Cross College, where he was active in the Debating Society and Intra-mural Athletics. Prior to entry into military service, Capt. Curry practiced law.

Branch P. O. In Parachute Area Opened

The new branch Post Office opened at the Parachute School for men of the First Academic company and adjacent outfits may in some ways resemble a "small town P. O." but according to Capt. Joseph F. Twohig, Fort Benning postal officer, it has individual mail box facilities which are comparable to those of a fourth-class post office.

A unique feature of the new establishment, the eleventh of its kind on the post, is that its hours are flexible enough to accommodate odd-time workers. The usual schedule of daily service is from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m., but many times the office stays open until a much later hour to satisfy the wants of its patrons. Lt. John A. Minter, public relations officer at the Parachute School, revealed.

Sgt. Francis M. Patterson of the First Academic company has been detailed as postmaster, and Lt. Wallace J. Comeau is postal officer. Besides offering the par-

The branch is designated by the U. S. Post Office as Unit No. 11 at Fort Benning. The plan of branch offices is heartily endorsed by Capt.
